Report of Forest Week celebration, 2021

The Geography Department at Mugberia Gangadhar Mahavidyalaya successfully celebrated "Forest Week" on July 17, 2021. The event aimed to raise awareness about environmental conservation and the importance of forests among the students.

The day began with an assembly of geography students, faculty, and staff, where the significance of Forest Week was highlighted. A series of informative sessions and discussions were conducted, emphasizing the role of forests in maintaining ecological balance and biodiversity.

A special highlight of the event was the "Tree Plantation Drive" organized by the students in collaboration with their parents. This initiative aimed to instill a sense of responsibility and environmental stewardship among the younger generation. The students, along with their parents, actively participated in planting saplings on the college premises. This hands-on experience not only contributed to the beautification of the campus but also served as a practical lesson in environmental sustainability.

The Tree Plantation Drive was followed by a brief ceremony, where participants were acknowledged for their active involvement. Certificates of appreciation were distributed to recognize the efforts of both students and parents in making the event a success.
