SYLLABUS

Functional Grammar

Functional Grammar plays an important role in the field of communication. It is very important for a student to get well trained with the theory of English grammar. They must also know how to implement those in verbal communication, written communication as well as public speaking. If they are thorough with the basic structuring of English sentences, they will feel confident to express and speak comfortably and confidently. We provide hands-on training on Functional Grammar thoroughly with the basic grammar, composition and proper structuring of sentences.

Verbal and Written Communication

To be an excellent communicator, one must be proficient in verbal and written communication skills. We have an intense module to enhance the effective Verbal and Written Communication skills. We groom the students to play with the words and express themselves most effectively. Here we are not only talking about communication skills but it is the effective communication skills required to be successful in a professional career. We focus on this section with utmost care.

Pronunciation, Intonation & Voice Modulation

The Current job roles in any industry, irrespective of domains, whether it is Technical, Operational, Administration, Management or Service oriented, demand excellent communication skills in English. Nowadays, the business has gone Global. So an employee must learn to communicate in such a way to speak and correspond with the native English speakers. Here proper pronunciation, intonation and voice modulation have a very important role to play. We have curated this section of our training so that the youngsters get well trained to speak English in a neutral accent, devoid of mother tongue influence and are more confident to communicate at international level.

Communication Techniques

Communication (both verbal and non-verbal) is vital part of soft skills training because it allows students to learn important life lessons and prepare them to be successful in their future careers. Communicating with others begins with understanding the importance of listening, which helps students gain valuable feedback and insight into the views of others. In order to communicate properly, you also need to understand your own communication style, as well as that of other people so that you can work purposefully together.

We start with the youngsters to improve their communication skills by teaching them how to listen and react appropriately in a range of contexts. As they progress, we'll introduce more sophisticated training techniques which will guide them to communicate with people in a variety of ways, handle conflict and settle disputes amicably, establish rapport with others, and comprehend the expectations and motivations of those involved in any given work situation.

Interview Techniques

Students need to be groomed well with Interview Techniques. We help students prepare for their interviews to be successful in the real world. We help the youngsters learn about the basics of appearing in an interview and meet expectations of the organization while hiring a person. We provide mock interview sessions and valuable insights into the students to be well prepared in facing the job interviews confidently, in a professional manner.

Public speaking skills

Effective and compelling communication are the key components of public speaking. One of the most crucial abilities is to master the art of public speaking skills. It helps a person to speak and convey intelligibly, succinctly, and coherently to give his best in any given circumstance. You may communicate your ideas more effectively by using your public speaking abilities and since doing so, it gives you the chance to be memorable, compelling, transparent and clear. We help the youngsters develop and sharpen their public speaking skills and abilities in a comfortable way. Candidates with excellent public speaking skills are always in high demand in an organization and it helps them to grow fast in their career path.

Leadership Skills Development

Leadership is fundamental to any organization. However, most organizations do not provide leadership training to their employees. Development of Leadership Skills takes a multipronged approach that includes knowledge of the values, behaviors, and strategies required for effective leadership. Leadership skills is the ability to meet a group's needs while being able to influence, persuade and motivate a group of people towards achieving a purpose. This can be achieved by knowing your audience and setting clear goals. Leadership behaviors vary greatly depending on cultural backgrounds, but there are common principles that all effective leaders follow such as setting goals, setting direction, creating boundaries and social presence as and when required.

Time management

The requirement of Time Management training is to learn how to manage your time, work harder at managing your time towards your career, better skills on prioritizing tasks, and create new habits to become a better person professionally as well as personally. Time management is an important skill for every professional. It helps you to be more efficient, work more effectively and achieve your objectives successfully. If you have time management skills, you can break the cycle of procrastination that often gets in the way of achieving what you want and take control of your life.

Emotional Intelligence

Possessing a high Emotional Intelligence is vital for students and controlling your emotions will increase your chances of succeeding in educational field. In fact, when it comes to academic performance, research (<https://www.apa.org/pubs/journals/releases/bul-bul0000219.pdf>) has revealed that emotional intelligence is almost as important as your cognitive intelligence and having a conscientious attitude, because emotionally intelligent students are better equipped to deal with negative emotions that might disrupt learning.

Over the years, emotional intelligence—also known as EQ—has evolved into a must-have skill. Research by EQ provider www.talentsmarteq.com shows that emotional intelligence is the strongest predictor of performance; and 71 percent of employers surveyed by www.careerbuilder.ca said they value EQ over IQ, reporting that employees with high emotional intelligence are more likely to stay calm under pressure, resolve conflict effectively, and respond to co-workers with empathy.
